Action oriented and show traits of intelligence. They can complement in intellect and are compatible with each other.

Goat people are elegant, charming, artistic, gifted and fond of nature. People born under this sign are also the most creative. They are also very delicate, their good manners and charms always bring many admirers and friends. Goats are insecure. They need to feel loved and protected. They are easily drawn into complex predicaments. This being so, they usually shy from confrontation, pull back when faced with heavy decision-making and blatantly refuse to take an unpopular stand in a conflict.

Goat people are dreamers. Sometimes they are pessimistic, hesitant and over-anxious worriers! They can be lazy sometimes. If Goats had the choice, they would definitely choose to marry a wealthy person and sit back for the rest of the lives. They are also obsessed with their appearance, which plays an enormous part in their sense of personal stability. If they don't look their best, they may be afraid to go out the door to pick up the Sunday papers.

Due to their indecisive nature, Goats like to study the esoteric to know more about the unknown. They enjoy reading books about horoscope and fortune-telling. Therefore it is not unusual to find Goats working as astrologers or fortune-tellers. Disorganized though they are, business is definitely not their strong point. Instead, the Goat will make a good craftsman, artist OR Writer and can confidently take up any career demanding artistic talents and creativities. Goat people are very romantic, sensitive, sweet and darling. In relationships, they can sometimes be a little bit bossy and lazy, but with their gentle and caring nature, it will be hard to resist them.

Monkeys are fun and loving people who are always cheerful and energetic. They are very clever. Give a monkey a boring book to read and he'll turn it into a Musical. Better yet, he'll invite everyone to see it free! That's how talented, creative and generous monkeys usually are.

If you go to a party, you'll find Monkeys at the center of attention. Their charm and humor is the key to their popularity. Sociable and diplomatic as they may appear, they can be deceptive sometimes - they hide their opinions of others beneath their friendliness. However, they don't hide their emotion. You can probably tell how a monkey is feeling from miles away - he wants everyone to know how happy or depressed he is.

Monkey people are very good at problem-solving. Wherever you are, whoever you may be, if you've got a problem pick up the phone and dial-a-Monkey. Monkeys know how to listen closely and work out solutions at the same time. And because of the Monkeys' curiosity, they usually have a great thirst for knowledge. Still they have few scruples - they can be unreasonable sometimes, and they have the ability to persuade themselves and everyone around them to believe that they are doing the right things. Some say monkeys are self-centered, opportunistic, or guileful, but monkeys couldn't care less - because they are also indifferent.

The Monkey has a good chance of becoming famous or well-known. Whatever he does, his charm and luck will make him successful. As friends, Monkeys are both loyal and devoted. As lovers, they can be passionate and yet flighty - they can fall easily in love but will get tired of the relationship and look for another. Most Monkeys have one fetish - FOOD. They are not pigs, they don't stuff themselves with food, instead they just have this habit of eating snacks
